"THE LANCASHIRE GRAND NATIONAL" AND "THE WAR O'THE ROSES"

For budding G.C.E. aspirants, Ancient Historians, and those who don't know, I append a brief history of the origin of "The Battles of the Roses".

Twixt 1455 and 1485 raged the English Civil Wars, a long and bitter struggle for the English Throne with the contestants the respective Houses of York and Lancaster.

The Lancastrians hoisted the RED ROSE as their emblem, whilst the Yorkists pinned their faith in the WHITE ROSE. For thirty long years the wars raged fiercely, and contemporary chroniclers stated that 100,000 of the common people and gentry, 200 Nobles, and 12 Princes of the Blood were killed in the course of this brutal period. It's a good job they hadn't motorcycles in 1455. Fancy your Richard on t'pillion wi' a lance in one hand an' a sword int'other, an' arrows jet-propelled from t'exhaust-pipe when tha were retreating.

May 23rd, 1455, saw the beginning of the Wars of the Roses, with the first Battle of St. Albans, followed in 1460 by the Battle of Northampton, when Henry VI, the Lancastrian King was taken prisoner.

The Battle of Wakefield, in the same year, saw the Yorkists defeated and the Duke of York slain. In 1461 the Yorkist Edward IV became King of England, and in his first year of reign was fought the Battle of Towton Fields, with a Yorkist triumph.

Came 1464 and the Battle of Hexham, with a heavy defeat for Lancastrians; then on to 1470, when Henry VI regained the throne. But in 1471 the Battles of Tewkesbury and Barnet were fought, with a victory for the House of York and the death of Henry IV.

Came 1485 and the Battle of Bosworth Field the death of Richard III, followed by the marriage of the Lancastrian Henry VII with the Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the Yorkist Edward IV, and the end of all that brutal rivalry between York and Lancaster.

But friendly rivalry germinated. (Did it? It did an' all!) In every field of sport this spirit of competition was fostered, and when, in 1926, the North Manchester Motor Club organised a Cross-Country Motor-Cycle Race with a challenge to their Yorkshire neighbours, "The Lancashire Grand National" became an established fact with the Battle of the Roses the greatest motor-cycle conquest of the year, and two teams from rival counties engaged in a "do or die" effort at "Back o' Hawkshaw". The winners? Yorkshire.

1927, and we found HOLCOMBE MOOR, kindly loaned to the North-Western Centre by the Hon. Ralph Assheton (now Lord Clitheroe), Lord of the Honour of Clitheroe, in the one part, and by the Ramsbottom U.D.C. in the other, and to whom we still record our grateful thanks.

All this is now behind us; modern conditions have demanded that the old gruelling mud plug shall be forgotten and we now change to fast, smooth undulating type of course typical of the European "Moto Cross" but still the traditional "War of the Roses" goes on. The original Silver Casket containing the faded red and white roses which were placed inside so long ago, will today be returned by N. Crooks, last year's winner and he will keep a replica in the form of a silver cigarette box. The Lancashire and Yorkshire heroes marked in your programme with an "L" or a "Y" will be competing for this historic award.

A further change occurred during the passing years when the event became a National one, open to all Great Britain, and for this, the premier award is the "Motor Cycling Challenge Trophy" presented by Messrs. Temple Press, and this, of course, attracts the top scramblers in the Country and today we have for our enjoyment and thrilling excitement, a representative entry list.

We wish ALL today's riders a good safe ride, AND MAY THE BEST MAN WIN.
